New! Improved Interface for Easier Navigation

Articles now include an interactive Table of Contents, page numbers, and section headers to help orient users within each article.

The screenshot shows the full article page for 'Ireland'. It features a detailed 'Introduction' section, a 'Table of Contents' on the left, and a 'Map of Ireland' on the right. The text discusses Ireland's geography, history, and culture, mentioning the Emerald Isle and the country's status as a self-governing dominion of the British Empire. The interface is clean and organized, with clear section headers and a sidebar for navigation.
