

Economics and Finance

Oxford University Press has an extensive list of publications in Economics ranging from some of the classic thinkers to a number of modern masters - twentieth century winners of the Nobel Prize for Economics and, especially in our Clarendon series, many of those whose thinking is currently driving the subject forward. Our authors are spread across the world and come from America, Europe and Asia.

The list has long been strong in Development Economics and Public Economics and in books on the boundary between Economics and Philosophy, especially where notions of welfare and equality are concerned. It has a distinct policy orientation. Econometrics has recently become a strength, a new departure has been the establishment of a striking list of books in Finance and we are entering the field of Behavioral Economics.

OUP runs international economics publishing programmes in Oxford and New York.

The titles below have been selected by OUP editors to show a sample of what will be included in the Economics and Finance core backlist in Oxford Scholarship Online (subject to rights clearance).
